RADIX DAO · WHAT GOVERNANCE TALKED ABOUT

Radix DAO Weekly

The week in governance, without the scroll-back

WEEK 34 · 17 AUG 2026

17–23 Aug 2026

COMMUNITY MOOD · DAY BY DAY

5/10 · same as last week

Previously: the Operating Agreement was approved, and the Marshall Islands DAO LLC filing was expected within days ahead of Charter ratification.

A quiet governance week, dominated by the arrival of radixdao.org as the DAO's official documentation venue and practical talk about how voting will actually work. A sharper debate opened about whether the community will genuinely step up once the DAO activates. The CaviarNine departure (covered in the Ecosystem issue) sharpened that argument.

WHAT THE ROOM TALKED ABOUT

radixdao.org portal goes live

Daffy created radixdao.org as a minimal, temporary site to meet the requirement for an official registered venue for the DAO, since the community does not control radixdlt.com. GENKIPOOL argued for multiple competing website proposals put to a vote instead.

DAO voting mechanics and quorum foxylady and Timan discussed the difficulty of reaching quorum in the two-stage Temperature Check / Governance Proposal process; foxylady suggested skipping the second round if over 10% of tokens vote yes with over 66% approval. Daffy offered to run a test Temperature Check on Stokenet so people can practice voting.

Will the community step up?

After the CaviarNine exit, members debated whether the community will actually propose and build now that the DAO takes over. flightofthefox argued bluntly that anyone willing to step up would have done so already; Phil Gibson echoed the point with a parable; foxylady and Timan urged people to stop waiting.

Community inaction and the handover

Michael (RadixScan) publicly asked saul_004 whether there is a decision on taking over half of Hyperscale development and what conditions govern the contractually locked Radix Holdings tokens; no answer appeared in the chat.

THE BOTTOM LINE

REMEMBER THIS

radixdao.org went live as the DAO's official venue, while members openly questioned whether the community will fill the gaps the DAO era will leave with it.

NEXT WEEK

Watch for: the Marshall Islands filing, Daffy's test Temperature Check on Stokenet, and any RAC communication update.

From the council & the crowd

What the tracked voices said, and the week's best exchanges.

COUNCIL & INSIDER WATCH

projectShift promoted the Stokenet reset announcement on the RAC channel and commented that the unfinished DAO site attracts less criticism than finished work; avaunt announced the Avaunt Staking validator closes 28 August with services moving to StakeSafe. The council gave no formal update this week.

projectShift TRANSITION RAC

Boosted the Stokenet reset announcement and said the DAO site's incompleteness is an advantage while it is under construction.

avaunt TRANSITION RAC

Announced the Avaunt Staking validator will close on 28 August after six years, with services migrating to StakeSafe; stressed they are not leaving Radix.

"This community has always been the heartbeat of what we do, and we're proud to have contributed to Radix alongside you."

flightofthefox HYPERSCALE DEV

Rejected the narrative that Radix is dead, arguing it may fare better in community hands, but was pessimistic that anyone will step up to fill gaps left by departing teams.

"the reports of Radix's death are greatly exaggerated"

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

"Could people practice voting before the DAO's real votes?"

Yes — Daffy offered to create a test Temperature Check on Stokenet so people can practise the voting process.

ASKED BY FOXYLADY · ANSWERED BY DAFFY

DEBATE OF THE WEEK — HOW TO HANDLE THE OFFICIAL WEBSITE

ONE SIDE

GENKIPOOL: multiple proposals for the official website should be put to a community vote.

THE OTHER

Daffy: a minimal, temporary governance-only site is needed now and should not compete with other channels.

Still open — expect a rematch.

THE PULSE

The mood: Subdued and questioning — the DAO’s paperwork moved forward, but departing teams fed a real argument about whether the community will step up.
