Radix DAO Weekly

The week in governance, without the scroll-back

WEEK 42 · 12 OCT 2026
12–18 Oct 2026
Telegram + RadixTalk

COMMUNITY MOOD · DAY BY DAY

4/10 · -1 vs last week

Previously: the Hyperscale funding fallout continued, Markus withdrew from the council race, and the HMRC filing against a former entity surfaced.

A quiet governance week with one clear milestone: the Transition RAC opened the two-week candidacy window for the Permanent RAC election, and linuxx became the first new nominee. Elsewhere, frustration over the XRD still held by the former RDX entity boiled over in the main chat, with calls for transparency and a community-built tracking dashboard.

WHAT THE ROOM TALKED ABOUT

Permanent RAC candidacy period opens

The Transition RAC opened a two-week candidacy window for the Permanent RAC election, aiming for 12+ candidates so a full council can be elected in one cycle. projectShift said the seven members who had already put themselves forward only need to confirm in the election thread.

Ex-RDX token holdings transparency

Gary publicly criticized years of secrecy around the XRD still held by the former RDX entity, saying he has been trying to orchestrate a buyout of the remaining tokens. The community identified the old accounts on-chain and built a wallet-monitoring dashboard.

THE BOTTOM LINE

REMEMBER THIS

The Permanent RAC candidacy period opened, with linuxx the first new nominee — the permanent council election is now formally underway.

NEXT WEEK

Watch for: more candidates confirming in the election thread, and any response to Gary's buyout outreach on the ex-RDX tokens.

COUNCIL & INSIDER WATCH

The Transition RAC opened the candidacy period for the Permanent RAC election and said it will activate the vote as soon as the voting steps are assured; projectShift also thanked linuxx and said TRAC will verify his accounts directly.

projectShift TRANSITION RAC

Announced the two-week candidacy window for the Permanent RAC election, targeting 12+ candidates so a full council can be elected in one cycle; seven earlier candidates only need to confirm in the thread.

"The sword may be double-edged but those edges are not equally sharpen nor identical in nature."

Mr. Peanutbutter TRANSITION RAC

Urged community members to step forward as candidates for the Accountability Council.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

"Does anyone know how to actually contact anyone from the old RDX entity?"

Gary said he emailed them directly and also has indirect contact through several other channels, and has been in conversations with nearly everyone involved.

DEBATE OF THE WEEK — WHAT TO DO WITH EX-RDX TOKENS

ONE SIDE

The former entity's large holders should be bought out or the tokens burned, so the project can move past the uncertainty.

THE OTHER

Swapping one large holder for another would not help; a gradual, broad redistribution of the holdings would be fairer.

Still open — expect a rematch.

THE PULSE

The mood: Frustration in the main chat over unanswered questions about the former entity’s tokens, offset by procedural optimism as the council election machinery finally moves.
