RADIX ECOSYSTEM · THE COMMUNITY, DISTILLED

COMMUNITY MOOD · DAY BY DAY

5/10 · +1 vs last week

Previously: the DAO ratification vote cleared quorum while the room argued over RDX Works' finances and whether Hyperscale can serve as Xi'an.

A bruising but constructive week: the fallout over flightofthefox's funding proposal erupted into a blame-heavy row, an HMRC filing against a Foundation-linked entity spooked the room, and the council posted an official update. But by the weekend the mood lifted — a transparent hUSDC recovery plan landed and XRD trading quietly returned on RocketX.

WHAT THE ROOM TALKED ABOUT

Funding fallout with flightofthefox

A day-long argument over whether fox broke the terms of his community proposal by distancing Hyperscale from Radix. He pushed back that he can't carry the network's hopes alone, and that validators ultimately decide what software runs anyway.

driven by Dezza, flightofthefox, GENKIPOOL

HMRC case and Foundation finances

@Andy.XRD pointed to a UK court filing appearing to seek winding up an entity over unpaid tax, said the Foundation has not been selling XRD, and mentioned mitigation with market makers. Tadkis explained RDXW Holdings is winding down subsidiaries with assets staying put.

hUSDC recovery gets transparent

Timan published a full account-by-account overview of the stuck ~442k hUSDC transaction with open-source verification code, and clarified the two completed transfers aren't covered. Bayesien put a refund list on radix.wiki; @Andy.XRD said Foundation talks with Hyperlane are 'wheels in motion'.

Gateway cost and missing go-to-market projectShift called the gateway an unsustainable hard dependency the network must remove or make far cheaper. PinkRedDog and fox agreed Radix lacks a joined-up go-to-market plan, though fox says scaling is worth doing regardless.

THE BOTTOM LINE

REMEMBER THIS

Timan's verifiable account-by-account hUSDC recovery overview is the transparency step the community had been asking for.

NEXT WEEK

Watch for: the Hyperlane deposit recovery progressing and the bridge returning once refunds complete.

From the council & the crowd

What the tracked voices said, and the week's best exchanges.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

“What is flightofthefox actually simulating, and how does the testing work?”

He runs days of simulated network time faster than real time with programmed actors breaking things; the system is nested finite state machines driven by a deterministic seed, and AI then rigorously debugs the issues found.

ASKED BY MARKUS · ANSWERED BY FLIGHTOFTHEFOX

DEBATE OF THE WEEK — CAN THE COMMUNITY KEEP WORKING WITH FOX?

ONE SIDE

Dezza and GENKIPOOL: Fox broke his word, pitched the proposal as Radix-specific while the software serves any network, and his conduct scares off corporate partners.

THE OTHER

foxylady and others: the proposal was clearly open source, the migration help stands, and the community should stop the drama and let the engineer work.

Still open — expect a rematch.

FROM THE NEWS ROOM

RocketX re-enables XRD trading

XRDETH trading is back, live on Astrolescent, though capped around $500 per trade while some cEX pools are offline.

Radix wiki charts updated

Bayesien refreshed radix.wiki with transactions, active accounts and more, plus a Week in Review with the hUSDC refund list.
radix.wiki/charts

DeXter validator unregistered

Timan unregistered the DeXter validator as 2.8M XRD of stake on an inactive project was unviable; stakers there should move their stake.

Caper needs testnet traction

A VC verdict called Caper 'mega' potential but wants more testnet traction; Bayesien invited project and DAO ideas.

FROM THE DEV ROOM

flightofthefox explained how he stress-tests Hyperscale: days of simulated network time with adversarial actors, modelled as finite state machines from a deterministic seed, with AI set loose on the bugs found.

HEARD IN THE ROOM

> "can a lad just work on tech without being some avatar of the project?"

THE PULSE

The mood: Raw early in the week over funding fallout and tax filings, but transparency on the hUSDC recovery and the return of trading steadied nerves by the weekend.

PREDICTION TRACKER

CAME TRUE

RocketX returns once CEXs resume

RocketX re-enabled XRD/ETH trading, limited to ~$500 per trade for now.

PENDING

GENKIPOOL ships Radix-only product by March

NEW

Hyperlane returns once hUSDC recovery completes

Timan and @Andy.XRD expect the bridge back after refunds wrap up.

NEW

Any skilled dev could code a frontier blockchain with AI within 12-18 months

Reply Guy's claim during the Fox funding row.

JARGON, DECODED

Finite state machine — A system modelled as a fixed set of states with defined rules for moving between them — fox uses it to simulate network behaviour deterministically.

VASP license — A Virtual Asset Service Provider license — official permission to handle crypto financially, which generally can't simply be transferred to a new owner.

Gateway — The API layer websites and apps use to read data from the Radix Network — a costly dependency the council wants removed or cheapened.
