What the room was really talking about

COMMUNITY MOOD

4/10

Previously: the Hyperscale funding fallout and unexplained treasury moves left trust thin, but the week closed better than it opened — with Timan's hUSDC recovery list, RocketX restored trading, and the RAC admitting it

A quiet, gritty week. Spam and gloom swallowed several days outright, but real signal surfaced underneath: a polished community video keeping the stuck hUSDC story honest, NOWNodes dropping Radix support stirring fresh infrastructure worries, and Gary ending the week with an unusually direct demand for transparency on the tokens still held by the old RDX entity.

WHAT THE ROOM TALKED ABOUT

Gary demands answers on ex-RDX tokens

Gary went public with a message to Radix contacts criticizing years of secrecy around XRD still held by the former RDX entity, saying his patience has nearly run out and he's been trying to orchestrate a buyout of the remaining tokens so the community can move on.

Community tracks the old RDX wallets

Jelthebest linked the Radixscan transaction that let the community identify which accounts belong to the old RDX setup, and lex shared a wallet-monitoring dashboard (rdxh.lovable.app), inviting people to send more wallets to track.

NOWNodes drops Radix support

L reported that NOWNodes no longer supports XRD on shared plans, offering only a 900 EUR/month dedicated node. Daffy countered that storage costs are down 40% and a 'Lean edition' gateway targeting a node plus gateway on a 1 TB disk is next — but a hosting partner to run it all as a service is still missing.

Speculation about Dan firmly shut down

A few members speculated about Dan Hughes's passing; Timan rebutted it flatly, saying he attended the funeral and saw Dan's family, and Vandy ILL asked the room to cut it out of respect.

THE BOTTOM LINE

REMEMBER THIS

Gary's public push to buy out the ex-RDX token holdings, backed by a community-built wallet tracker, has turned vague unease into a concrete, answerable question.

NEXT WEEK

Watch for: Gary's promised update on the ex-RDX buyout talks, and whether anyone steps up as the missing node-hosting partner.

More from the room

The week had more conversations than one page could hold.

Asset-oriented design put on trial

After a recent exploit, Felix K asked whether Radix's asset-oriented execution really beats a simple VM like Ethereum's. Azel | genesisclovn.xrd argued the design worked as intended but an update 'left the keys in front of the door'; projectShift later added that shared lower-layer code is a double-edged sword whose edges can be managed with care.

ALSO THIS WEEK

- GENKIPOOL's community console set a 41-visits-in-24-hours traffic record unprompted, and added pool, locker and wallet playground features.
- Vlad B • ideomaker.com • foton.is • radi called the community console more feature-rich than the official one, using it almost daily.
- Mr. Peanutbutter  called for RAC candidates; Sink the Boats said he won't put his name forward again.
- José Melo Macedo Neto warned that longtime supporters have quietly given up feeling unheard, with promised post-hack updates still missing.

COUNCIL & INSIDER WATCH

projectShift RAC

Weighed in on shared base-layer code: with careful risk management, minimizing lower-layer risk while sharpening upper-layer leverage means the efficiency gains more than offset the dangers.

"The sword may be double-edged but those edges are not equally sharpen nor identical in nature."

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

"Does anyone know how to actually contact anyone from the old RDX entity?"

Gary said he emailed them directly and has indirect contact through several other channels, and has been in conversations with nearly everyone involved.

ASKED BY JELTHEBEST · ANSWERED BY GARY

DEBATE OF THE WEEK — WHAT TO DO WITH EX-RDX TOKENS

ONE SIDE

Gary and José Melo Macedo Neto: the former entity's large holdings should be bought out or burned so the project can finally move past the uncertainty.

THE OTHER

Og World: swapping one large holder for another solves nothing — a gradual, broad redistribution would be fairer.

Still open — expect a rematch.

FROM THE DEV ROOM

The dev-flavored talk centred on node hosting: Daffy reported a 40% drop in storage costs for a mainnet node and is targeting a 'Lean edition' gateway that fits a node plus gateway on a single 1 TB disk.

HEARD IN THE ROOM

"Dude, I went to his funeral and saw his kids and wife... there is literally no reason why he would have faked his own death"

— TIMAN

"The best thing you can do to help Radix is to build a sound business that runs on it."

— RADICAL

"Under eight minutes, every claim checked"

— MATUS

THE PULSE

The mood: Weary and short on trust — but the rebuilders kept building, with community tooling, honest video reporting and a blunt call for transparency.
